No More Fear, No More Fright: How Attorneys Can Use Their Might When Facing Failure

On Friday, June 5, Kenny Matuszewski will be presenting on "No More Fear, No More Fright: How Attorneys Can Use Their Might When Facing Failure" at the 11th Annual Ethics in the Practice of Intellectual Property Law Seminar, hosted online by the UIC John Marshall Law School's Center for Intellectual Property, Information & Privacy Law. Kenny will be discussing how perfectionism and the fear of failure have entrenched themselves in the practice of law, and by finding the benefits of past failures and viewing failure as a challenge, attorneys can grow their practice, develop resiliency, and improve mental health when facing future failures.
