

Patent Opinions

Our patent professionals perform patent opinion work that helps our clients mitigate risk by avoiding potentially costly patent litigation. Because our patent attorneys and agents regularly prepare domestic and international patent applications across a wide array of technologies, including business methodologies, software, chemical processes, and electrical and mechanical devices, we are adept in our review of prior art searches and can accurately opine on patent eligibility, saving our clients resources to hone patent applications that are more likely to be granted.

Our experience in patent prosecution also enables us to spot infirmities that may invalidate our client's competitors' patents and counsel clients on infringement matters, including preparing written opinions on right-to-use and the infringement, viability and validity of patents owned by our clients or their competitors. We help our clients make sound business-driven decisions by performing the due diligence needed to avoid obstacles and risks and to clear patents so that product production and launch can begin.
