

Structuring Operations

Increased globalization and the lure of emerging markets are changing the way family offices operate. We are old hands at crafting and executing family office plans critical to support inter-generational businesses, making Neal Gerber Eisenberg the right choice to structure family office operations to thrive in today's economic climate.

The firm's key strength comes from the ability of our lawyers to apply their cross-practice experience in business, tax and private wealth services to evolving standards for family office operations. We review operational issues driven by a more diverse economic landscape, the emergence of new wealth centers worldwide and changing approaches to wealth management in mature markets.

We serve as trusted advisors, preserving net worth by ensuring that family-held business operations are aligned to meet future challenges while balancing the potentially competing needs of family members. We advise on all aspects of structuring operations, from ownership and governance, capital structure, funding and regulatory compliance to ERISA and benefit plans, intellectual property and information technology, providing the operational oversight family offices need to protect and preserve assets for future generations.
