Neal Gerber Eisenberg Cross-Border Group Earns Global Recognition From Chambers

Neal Gerber Eisenberg is pleased to announce that for a second consecutive year the firm has earned the distinction of being featured in the Spotlight Table in the category "Energy: Mining & Metals (Transactional)" in the 2019 Chambers Global guide. Partners David S. Stone and John J. Koenigsnecht, co-chairs of the firm's Cross-Border & International practice group, lead this effort. Neal Gerber Eisenberg has been named in the Spotlight Table in the Chambers Global Guide and the nationwide Spotlight Table in the Chambers USA guide in this category since their respective inceptions.

"We are thrilled that the Cross-Border & International practice group led by David and John continues to earn such a high level of recognition," said Managing Partner Scott J. Fisher. "Their expert counsel is sought by many of the leading mining and precious metals companies across the globe, as they continue to lead our clients through complex and sophisticated cross-border mergers, acquisitions, and capital-related transactions. This was highlighted with their current representation of Goldcorp in the largest precious metals mining transaction in history."

The Chambers Global announcement points out that the group "is particularly recognised for its work on behalf of Canadian-based entities." Notable clients include Goldcorp, Sandstorm Gold Ltd., Tahoe Resources,
