McShane “is a stellar lawyer on everything from clearance to enforcement” and that he “should be everyone’s first port of call for analysis regarding the impact of new technology on trademarks.” It says that Michael Kelber “is approachable and dependable and is great at connecting with people. He produces the highest-calibre work product, shows impeccable judgement at all times and manages and inspires his team brilliantly.” Finally, it describes Lee Eulgen as “a master at getting the full weight of the firm pulling in his clients’ – invariably famous brand owners – direction. The firm launched its Intellectual Property practice group in 2002 with just three attorneys. Today, the group consists of 37 dedicated IP attorneys, seven paralegals, two patent agents, and a docket team of eight IP professionals. Eleven of the attorneys are members of the patent trial bar. The practice is responsible for managing, prosecuting and enforcing global patent and trademark portfolios for some of the most cutting-edge technology and Fortune 500 companies. Additionally, it has obtained significant litigation victories for its clients in Chicago and beyond. Michael Kelber co-chairs the practice group with Thomas McDonough.

The WTR 1000 qualitative research was conducted over a four-month period by a team of full-time analysts, inclusive of in-person interviews with trademark specialists across the world. This year the 10th edition features more than 80 countries and U.S. state-specific chapters analyzing local trademark legal services and profiling the firms and individuals designated as leaders in their respective fields based on depth of expertise and market presence, alongside positive peer and client feedback.
