

Charles K. Shih

Associate | Intellectual Property

OVERVIEW

Charlie is a member of the firm's Intellectual Property practice group. Charlie counsels clients in protecting and evaluating their intellectual property assets, from enforcing or protecting intellectual property rights through patent litigation, to prosecuting patents before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office and protecting those intellectual property interests using the America Invents Act post-grant patent review process before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board. Charlie also assists clients with analyzing inventions for patentability opinions and patents for invalidity and noninfringement opinions. He also advises companies in the negotiation and drafting of agreements, including for the licensing, purchase, and sale of intellectual property assets.

While earning his law degree, Charlie was Business Manager of the University of Cincinnati Law Review, and a Founding Leader of the University of Cincinnati Intellectual Property & Computer Law Journal. He was also awarded the Gustavus Henry Wald Memorial Prize for Contracts, and was a member of the National Asian Pacific American Bar Association.

Charlie received his B.S. in bioengineering at Rice University. At Rice University, Charlie worked in the laboratory of Dr. Antonios Mikos developing polymer-controlled release systems for human growth hormones. As an undergrad, Charlie was awarded the George R. Brown Engineering Research Grant for his work. After graduation, Charlie continued working in the Mikos lab for 3 years, continuing his research on polymer control release systems and bone tissue engineering.
