

U.S. Court of Appeals Sides with U.S. Department of Labor Regarding Overtime and Minimum Wage Protections for Home Care Workers

August 21, 2015

This morning the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit reversed the lower court and ruled that the Department of Labor's decision to extend overtime and minimum wage protections to most home care workers is a reasonable interpretation of the law. As a result, the Department of Labor's rules gives home care workers the same Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) protections as those who work in institutional settings.

We wanted to bring this important decision to your attention as soon as possible. In the near future we intend to address the specific changes in pay practices you will have to consider as you absorb the impact of this significant development.

.....

This alert was written by Gerald A. Golden (312-269-8008, ggolden@ngelaw.com) and Jason C. Kim (312-269-8019, jkim@ngelaw.com). If you have any questions related to this article or would like additional information, please contact the authors, your attorney at Neal Gerber Eisenberg, or any attorney in the Labor & Employment practice group.

Click here for a full listing of our Labor & Employment attorneys.

Please note that this publication should not be construed as legal advice or a legal opinion on any specific facts or circumstances. The contents of this publication are intended solely for general purposes, and you are urged to consult a lawyer concerning your own situation and any specific legal questions you may have.

Any tax advice contained in this publication is not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of (i) avoiding penalties under the Internal Revenue Code or (ii) promoting, marketing or recommending to another party any transaction or matter addressed herein.

The alert is not intended and should not be considered as a solicitation to provide legal services. However, the alert or some of its content may be considered advertising under the applicable rules of the supreme courts of Illinois, New York and certain other states.